We read of wool in the West for sale at low prices. Ten carloads were offered at auction in one of the Western cities and 20 cents a pound was the best offer made. And still a two-piece suit of clothes is called cheap at $60 if made of all wool. Notwithstanding the high prices, I never saw people dress better. And the negroes dress about as well as the whites.

No one ever saw nicer weather than we have had for the past two weeks, so far as comfort was concerned; but even the most careless person would like to see warm nights come, and then a timely rain. Mr. Charlie Wood is buying railroad ties and keeping post office at Wingina, and he
